Eminem Loses Notebook With Lyrics For D-12 Album

By archive-Brian-Hiatt

Will whoever has Slim Shady's notebook please stand up?

Eminem has lost a notebook that contains the lyrics to an upcoming album with his group D-12, and is offering a cash reward or a chance to meet him in exchange for its return.

The songs have not yet been recorded, according to the rapper's spokesperson, Dennis Dennehy.

Eminem last saw the spiral notebook on Friday during a Delta Air Lines flight from Cincinnati to New Orleans, according to a statement from his label, Interscope. The notebook sports a picture of Britney Spears on its cover.

Eminem's first album with D-12, a group of Detroit rappers whom he's known since before he found fame with 1999's The Slim Shady LP, is expected in March or April, according to Dennehy.

Eminem recently released the single "Sh-- on You" with D-12, which includes the Everlast-dissing B-side "I Remember."

Anyone with information on the whereabouts of Eminem's notebook can call (888) 311-4343,
